88.(1) Where in any proceeding before the court or any other court of competent jurisdiction the custody or upbringing of an infant, or the administration of any property belonging to or held on trust for an infant, or the application of the income thereof is in question the court in deciding that question shall regard the welfare of the infant as the first and paramount consideration, and shall not take into consideration whether from any point of view the claim of the father, or any right at common law possessed by the father, in respect of such custody, upbringing, administration or application is superior to that of the mother, or the claim of the mother is superior to that of the father.

(2) The mother of an infant has the like powers to apply to the court in respect of any matter affecting the infant as are possessed by the father.

Rights of surviving parent as to guardianship

89.(1) On the death of the father of an infant the mother, if she is surviving, shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be guardian of the infant, either alone or jointly with any guardian appointed by the father.

(2) When no guardian has been appointed by the father (who is deceased) of an infant, or if the guardian or all the guardians appointed by such a father is or are dead or refuses or refuse to act, the court may, if it thinks fit, appoint a guardian to act jointly with the mother of the infant.

(3) On the death of the mother of an infant the father, if he is surviving, shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be guardian of the infant, either alone or jointly with any guardian appointed by the mother.

(4) When no guardian has been appointed by the mother (who is deceased) of an infant, or if the guardian or all the guardians appointed by such a mother is or are dead or refuses or refuse to act, the court may, if it thinks fit, appoint a guardian to act jointly with the father of the infant.

(5) If, pursuant to this section, a guardian has been appointed by the court to act jointly with a mother or, as the case may be, father of an infant as guardian of such infant such appointed guardian shall, until the court otherwise orders, continue to act as guardian after the death of such surviving mother or, as the case may be, father but if such surviving mother or, as the case may be, father has appointed a guardian or guardians of such infant the guardian appointed by the court shall act jointly with the guardian or guardians appointed by such surviving mother or, as the case may be, father as guardian of such infant.

(2) The mother of an infant may, by deed or (if otherwise competent at law to make a will) by will, appoint (and in the case of the mother of an infant to whose father she was not married at the time of its conception and whom she has not since married shall be deemed always to have had the power to so appoint) any person or persons to be guardian or guardians of the infant after the death of such mother.

(3) Any guardian so appointed shall act jointly with the surviving mother or, as the case may be, father of the infant for so long as such mother or father lives unless such mother or father objects to his or her so acting.

(3A) If such mother or father so objects, or if any guardian so appointed considers that such mother or father is unfit to have the custody of such infant, such guardian may apply to the court to declare as to the guardianship in issue and thereupon the court may—

- (a) refuse to make any order or declaration in which case the mother or, as the case may be, father shall continue as sole guardian of the infant concerned; or
- (b) order that the guardian or guardians so appointed or any of them and, when there are more than 1 guardian so appointed, whether or not any of them is party to such application, shall act jointly with such mother or, as the case may be, father as guardian of the infant concerned; or
- (c) order that the guardian or guardians so appointed or any of them and, when there are more than 1 guardian so appointed, whether or not any of them is party to such application, shall be guardian of the infant concerned in lieu of such mother or, as the case may be, father.

(3B) When the court makes an order upon an application made pursuant to this section, it may—thinks fit;

 - (ii) institute and maintain such proceedings in relation to the property of the infant as may be necessary for effectually carrying out any of the powers conferred by subparagraph (i).

(2) Subject to an order of any court of competent jurisdiction a guardian may exercise a power conferred by subsection (1) from time to time until the infant subject to the guardianship attains the age of 21 years and no longer.

Court may make orders as to custody and maintenance of infants

93.(1) Upon application by the mother or the father of an infant (which application may be made without next friend), the court may make such order as it thinks to be in the best interests of the infant concerned regarding the custody of such infant and the right of access to such infant by its father or, as the case may require, its mother.

(1A) In determining such an application the court shall have regard to—

- (a) the welfare of the infant;
- (b) the conduct of the mother and the father of the infant;
- (c) the wishes of both the mother and father of the infant.

(2) Where such an order has been made the court may, upon application by the mother or father of the infant concerned, or, if either the mother or father has died, by any guardian appointed in accordance with the provisions of this Act, vary or discharge such order in such manner as it thinks to be in the best interests of the infant concerned.

(3) Upon an application made pursuant to this section the court—

- (a) may make such order regarding the costs of the mother or, as the case may require, the father or guardian and the liability of any person therefor as the court thinks just;
- (b) may make such order regarding the maintenance of the infant concerned and the liability of the mother or, as the case may be, the father of such infant to make weekly or other periodical payments towards such maintenance as the court, having regard to the means of the person who is to be ordered to pay such maintenance, thinks reasonable.

(4) The court may exercise all or any of the powers conferred by this section notwithstanding that the mother of the infant concerned is, at the time, residing with the father of such infant.

(4A) However, an order made by the court pursuant to this section shall not be enforceable and no liability under such an order shall accrue while such mother resides with such father and if such residence continues for a period of 3 months after such order is made such order shall cease to have any force and effect.

(5) In a proceeding under this section or section 93A in relation to the maintenance of an infant whose parents were not married to each other at the time of its conception and have not since married each other, the court—

- (a) shall not be satisfied that a particular male person is the father of the infant on the uncorroborated evidence of the mother;
- (b) shall not make a maintenance order against a person alleged to be the father of the infant if it is satisfied that at about the time of its conception the mother was a common prostitute or had had sexual intercourse with a man other than such person.

Childrens Court may make interim orders for custody and maintenance

93A.(1) When the Childrens Court to which is made an application under section 93 adjourns the matter of the application (whether or not the proceeding has previously been adjourned) it may, after such inquiry as it thinks necessary, make an interim order regarding the custody and maintenance of the infant concerned and regarding the right of access to the infant by either of the infant's parents.

(2) An order made under subsection (1)—

- (a) shall remain in force until the expiration of 3 months from the date of its making or until the matter of the application again comes before the court, whichever first occurs; and
- (b) shall not be subject to appeal;

but otherwise shall be deemed to be 1 or more of the following orders, according to its tenor—

- (c) in the case of an interim award of custody or of access—an order that awards custody of an infant or, as the case may be, right of access to an infant;

- (d) in the case of an interim award of maintenance—a maintenance order.

(3) The hearing of an application made under section 93 shall not be taken to have commenced by reason only of the making of an interim order under subsection (1) or of the holding of an inquiry for that purpose, or both, and accordingly the matter of the application may be heard and determined by the Childrens Court to which the application is made whether the court is constituted by the magistrate who made the order or by another magistrate.

When maintenance order may be enforced by a clerk of the Magistrates Court 94.(1) The court may by maintenance order (be it a final or an interim order) made pursuant to this part or by a subsequent order made upon the application of the person having custody of the infant in respect of whose maintenance such order has been made direct that such maintenance (including, in the case of a subsequent order, all arrears of maintenance accrued under the maintenance order and unpaid at the date of the making of such subsequent order, the amount of which arrears may be determined by the court) shall be paid to the clerk of the court at a place appointed for holding Magistrates Courts specified by the court.

(1A) However, in the case of a subsequent order, the court shall not direct in manner provided for in subsection (1) unless it is satisfied, having regard to section 93(4A), that the maintenance order is enforceable.

(2) Upon the filing in the registry of the Supreme Court or upon the making by the Childrens Court of an order containing the direction provided for in subsection (1) the registrar or, as the case may require, clerk of the court or other person having custody of the records of the Childrens Court in question shall forward an office copy thereof (and, in the case of an order subsequent to a maintenance order, an office copy of such maintenance order, and any order varying the same) to the clerk of the court at the place appointed for holding Magistrates Courts specified in the direction aforesaid.

(2A) When and as often as a subsequent order varying or discharging the maintenance order is filed in the registry of the Supreme Court or is made by the Childrens Court the registrar or, as the case may require, clerk of the court or other person having custody of the records of the Childrens Court in question shall forward an office copy of that subsequent order to the appropriate clerk of the court.

(2B) Every such office copy shall be made and forwarded as prescribed free of charge and may be so forwarded by prepaid registered post or by delivering the same to the appropriate clerk of the court at his or her office.

(3) Upon the receipt of an office copy of a maintenance order forwarded to the clerk of the court pursuant to this section the clerk of the court shall enter the same in a register to be kept by the clerk of the court for the purpose and thereupon the maintenance order shall, subject to any further order varying or discharging the same, be of the same force and effect and may be enforced under the Maintenance Act 1949, or any Act passed in substitution therefor and all proceedings and remedies for the enforcement thereof may be taken as if such order were a maintenance order made pursuant to the Maintenance Act 1949, or, as the case may require, any Act passed in substitution therefor by a Magistrates Court and containing a direction that the payment of maintenance be made to the clerk of the court and, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Act contained, it shall, for the purpose of taking all such proceedings and remedies for the enforcement thereof be deemed to be enforceable and remain in full force and effect until the direction referred to in subsection (1) is suspended, varied or rescinded by the court or the maintenance order which includes such direction is discharged by the court.

(3A) A Magistrates Court shall not have or exercise any power to vary, suspend or discharge any such order or, while it subsists, to substitute a new order in its stead.

(4) The court may at any time suspend, vary or rescind a direction made pursuant to this section.

(5) The provisions of this section shall operate so as not to prejudice the jurisdiction, powers and authority of the court or the enforcement of any maintenance order in any other manner provided by law.

Power of court to remove guardian

95. The court may, in its discretion, if it is satisfied that it is in the best interests of the infant concerned, remove from office any testamentary guardian or any guardian appointed pursuant to this part and, if the court is satisfied that it is in the best interests of the infant concerned, appoint another guardian in place of the guardian so removed.

Production of infant

96.(1) When a parent of an infant applies to the court for a writ or order for the production of such infant and the court is of opinion that such parent has abandoned or deserted the infant or that the parent has otherwise so conducted himself or herself that the court should not enforce the parent's right to the custody of the infant, the court may, in its discretion, refuse to issue such writ or make such order.

(2) If, upon such an application, it appears to the court that the applicant—

- (a) has abandoned or deserted such infant; or
- (b) has allowed such infant to be brought up by a person or persons other than the applicant at such person's or persons' expense for such a period and under such circumstance that the court is satisfied that the applicant was unmindful of his or her parental duties;

the court shall not order the delivery of such infant to the applicant unless the applicant satisfies the court that, having regard to the welfare of the infant, the applicant is a fit person to have the custody of the infant.

(3) If at the date of such an application such infant is being or has been brought up by a person or persons other than the applicant the court may, if it issues the writ or makes the order applied for, further order that the applicant pay to such other person or persons the whole of the costs properly incurred by him or her or them in bringing up such infant (the amount of which costs may be determined by the court) or such portion of such costs as the court thinks just and reasonable having regard to all the circumstances of the case.

Power of court as to infant's religious education

97.(1) If, upon an application by a parent of an infant for the production or custody of such infant it appears to the court that—

- (a) the applicant ought not to have custody of such infant; and
- (b) the infant is being brought up in a religion different to that in which the applicant has a legal right to require that the infant should be brought up, the court may, in its discretion, if the applicant so requires it, make such an order as it thinks fit to secure that such infant be brought up in the religion in which the applicant so requires.

(2) The provisions of this section shall not be construed to prejudice—

- (a) the power of the court to inform itself of and to have regard to the wishes of such infant as to what order (if any) should be made; or
- (b) the right of such infant to make a free choice in relation to the matter.

Disputes between joint guardians

98. When 2 or more persons who are joint guardians of an infant do not agree on any matter affecting the welfare of such infant, any of them may apply to the court for its direction and the court may make such order regarding the matter in difference as it thinks proper.

Rules of court

99. The power to make rules of court conferred upon the Governor in Council by the Supreme Court Act 1995, includes power to make such rules in relation to the exercise by the Supreme Court of its jurisdiction conferred by this Act.

Childrens Court not competent in certain applications

100.(1) Notwithstanding any provision of this Act the Childrens Court shall not be competent to hear any application made pursuant to or referred to in this part—

- (a) if the infant in relation to whom such application is made is not a child at the date of the making of such application; or

- (b) the determination of which application—
 - (i) involves the administration or application of any property belonging to or held on trust for an infant, or the income thereof; or
 - (ii) would or would be likely to rescind, discharge, vary or otherwise affect an order made by the Supreme Court in respect of the infant concerned.

Venue of applications to Childrens Court

(2) An application to be made to the Childrens Court pursuant to this part shall be made to the Childrens Court in the Magistrates Courts district in which the infant, in respect of whom such application is to be made, is at the date of the making of such application.

(3) If the magistrate constituting the Childrens Court to which an application is made pursuant to this part considers that such application could more properly or conveniently be determined by the Supreme Court the magistrate shall refrain from dealing with such application.

(3A) An appeal shall not lie from such a decision.

Enforcement of certain orders of Childrens Court

(4) Where it is made to appear to the Childrens Court that an order made by it awarding custody of an infant to any person or right of access to an infant has not been complied with within a reasonable time and that all reasonable efforts have been made by the person in whose favour the order was made to secure compliance with the order the magistrate constituting that court may, having regard to the nature of the order—

- (a) issue a warrant directed to such person to take the child into his or her keeping and do all other things necessary to secure compliance with the order;
- (b) issue a warrant directed to all police officers to take into custody the person who has failed to comply with the order and to bring the person before the court as soon as practicable to show cause why the person should not be imprisoned for the failure to comply with the order.

(5) A person to whom such a warrant is directed may, using such force as is reasonable and with such assistance as the person reasonably requires, enter upon any premises and take into his or her keeping the child named in the order or, as the case requires, take into his or her custody the person named in the warrant, remove the child therefrom for the purpose of securing compliance with the order and do all other things necessary to secure compliance with the order.

(6) A person who fails to comply with an order referred to in subsection (4) within a reasonable time having regard to the nature of the order and who fails to show sufficient cause for such failure to the Childrens Court before which the person appears (either voluntarily or in custody under a warrant) may be imprisoned by order of that court for a period not exceeding 12 months or until the order is sooner complied with.

Removal of proceeding into Supreme Court

(3) Every foster parent shall be responsible not only for his or her own acts or defaults in relation to a child in care in the foster parent's charge or in relation to the home in question but also for any act or default in relation to such child or home of any member of the foster parent's family or of any person employed by the foster parent in or in connection with the home.

(4) It is immaterial for the purpose of establishing liability of a foster parent for an offence against this Act that, in respect of any such act or default, such foster parent—

(3) The fact that prior to the person's completion of a period of employment or apprenticeship a person ceases to be a child in care shall not affect the validity and effect of any agreement or indenture, entered into or any act done in relation to the arrangement of such employment or apprenticeship while such person was a child in care.

(4) When prior to the child's completion of a period of employment or apprenticeship the guardianship of a child in care passes from the director to any person in accordance with this Act the person who, from time to time, is guardian of such child shall be deemed to be the guardian who is a party to any agreement or indenture entered into by the director with respect to such employment or apprenticeship as guardian of such child in care and to be bound by the covenants and agreements therein made on the part of the director who shall thereupon be discharged from any obligation thereunder in respect of a breach of such covenants or agreements occurring after the date such guardianship passes from the director.

on trust for such child.

(3) If a child in care to whom a notice has been given pursuant to subsection (2) fails to obey the requisition therein contained the director or officer of the department authorised by the director may, by notice in writing to the employer or master of such child, require such employer or master to pay to the director the wage, or part thereof, which, but for such requisition, would be payable to such child.

(4) The employer or master to whom a notice is given pursuant to subsection (3) shall comply with the requisition therein contained on and from the payday next following the receipt by the employer of such notice until the director or an officer of the department authorised by the director otherwise directs or the child concerned ceases to be a child in care whichever first occurs.

- (c) in any case referred to in paragraph (a)—pay or deliver such property and interest accrued thereon to the person who in law is entitled to hold such property for such person and thereupon the director shall be absolved from the management of such property and from any liability for subsequent misapplication or non-application thereof;
- (d) in the case referred to in paragraph (b)—sell for the best price the director can obtain either by public auction or private treaty so much of such property as, in the director's opinion, is saleable (except such articles of a personal nature as the Minister directs, which articles shall be disposed of as the Minister in the particular case directs) and pay the net proceeds of such a sale and all other money the director is then holding or has on deposit for such person into the consolidated fund.

(5) If the director does not know of the whereabouts of a person for whom the director is holding or has on deposit property pursuant to this section when the director is required by this section to pay or deliver such property to such person the director shall continue to retain such property and if, by the expiration of 1 year, no person has established his or her entitlement to such property to the satisfaction of the director the director shall sell for the best price the director can obtain either by public auction or private treaty so much thereof as, in the director's opinion, is saleable and shall pay the net proceeds of such a sale and all other money the director is then retaining for such person and interest accrued thereon to the credit of the trust fund established pursuant to the Audit Act 1874, and shall dispose of all other such property as the director thinks fit.
