[s 47]

‘(2) For the purpose of deciding whether the contract is a credit contract and, if it is a credit contract, of applying this Code (including part 6) to it—

- (a) a debt is to be regarded as having been incurred, and credit provided, in the circumstances mentioned in subsection (1); and
- (b) the debtor is the purchaser under the contract; and
- (c) the credit provider is the vendor under the contract; and
- (d) the charge for providing the credit is the amount by which the amount payable to purchase the land, together with any other amount payable under the contract other than outgoings for the land, exceeds the cash price of the land.

‘(3) This section does not affect the application of this Code to a contract that is, apart from this section, a credit contract.

‘(4) In this section—

deposit, in relation to a contract, means an amount—

- (a) not exceeding 10% of the amount payable to purchase the land under the contract; and
- (b) paid or payable in 1 or more amounts; and
- (c) liable to be forfeited and retained by the vendor in the event of a breach of contract by the purchaser.

outgoings includes rates, water charges and house and contents insurance.

rent payment, under a contract, means a payment—

- (a) made by the purchaser to the vendor in exchange for possession of the land before becoming entitled to receive a conveyance or transfer of the land; and
- (b) that is not deductible from the amount payable to purchase the land.

‘10B Deciding application of Code to particular contracts for the sale of goods by instalments

- ‘(1) This section applies to a contract for the sale of goods if the amount payable to purchase the goods under the contract—
- (a) is payable by instalments; and
 - (b) exceeds the cash price of the goods.
- ‘(2) This section does not apply to a contract for the hire of goods even if the hirer has a right or obligation to purchase the goods.
- ‘(3) For the purpose of deciding whether the contract is a credit contract and, if it is a credit contract, of applying this Code (including part 6) to it—
- (a) a debt is to be regarded as having been incurred, and credit provided, in the circumstances mentioned in subsection (1); and
 - (b) the debtor is the person who is to make the payments; and
 - (c) the credit provider is the person who is to receive the payments; and
 - (d) the charge for providing the credit is the amount by which the amount payable to purchase the goods, together with any other amount payable under the contract, exceeds the cash price of the goods.
- ‘(4) This section does not affect the application of this Code to a contract that is, apart from this section, a credit contract.

‘10C Deciding application of Code to particular contracts for the sale of goods by instalments under related contracts

- ‘(1) For the purpose of this section, a contract is a related contract to a contract for the sale of goods (the goods contract) if—
- (a) the sale of the goods is financed, wholly or partly, by the provision of credit under the contract; and

[s 48]

- (b) the credit provider under the contract is—
 - (i) the supplier of goods under the goods contract; or
 - (ii) a related body corporate within the meaning of the Corporations Act of the supplier of the goods under the goods contract; and
 - (c) the amount payable under the contract is payable by instalments.
- ‘(2) For the purpose of deciding whether a related contract to a goods contract is a credit contract and, if it is a credit contract, of applying this Code (including part 6) to it, the charge for providing the credit is the amount by which the amount payable to purchase the goods, together with any other amount payable under the related contract, exceeds the cash price of the goods.
- ‘(3) This section does not affect the application of this Code to a contract that is, apart from this section, a credit contract.’.

48 Amendment of s 15 (Matters that must be in contract document)

- (1) Section 15(B)(c), ‘its price’—
omit, insert—
‘its cash price’.
