accredited as a rail infrastructure manager for the financial year; and

- (B) 10.1c for each estimated kilometre of railway track to be used for transporting passengers or freight under the person's accreditation as a rolling stock operator for the financial year.

Examples of kilometres of railway tracks used for transporting passengers or freight—

- 1 If a train uses 300km of railway tracks to transport passengers or freight from point A to point B, and then makes a return journey to point A without passengers or freight, the number of kilometres of railway tracks used to transport the passengers or freight is 2 x 300km (being 600km).
- 2 If the train mentioned in example 1 makes 30 return journeys between point A and point B each day of a financial year, the number of kilometres of railway tracks used to transport passengers or freight for the financial year is 2 x 300km x 30 x 365 (being 6570000km).¹.
