- (i) the child's parents; and 5

- 7 Additional principles concerning Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander persons
- (1) This Act is also to be administered under the following principles—
- (a) because adoption (as provided for in this Act) is not part of Aboriginal tradition or Island custom, adoption of an Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander child should be considered as a way of meeting the child’s need for long-term stable care only if there is no better available option;
- Note—*
- Island custom includes a customary child-rearing practice that is similar to adoption in so far as parental responsibility for a child is permanently transferred to someone other than the child’s parents. This practice is sometimes referred to as either ‘customary adoption’ or ‘traditional adoption’.
- (b) it is in the best interests of an Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander child—
- (i) to be cared for within an Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander community; and
- (ii) to maintain contact with the child’s community or language group; and
- (iii) to develop and maintain a connection with the child’s Aboriginal tradition or Island custom; and
- (iv) for the child’s sense of Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander identity to be preserved and enhanced.

(2)	The adopted child becomes a child of the adoptive parent and the adoptive parent becomes a parent of the adopted child.	6 7
(3)	The adopted child stops being a child of a former parent and a former parent stops being a parent of the adopted child.	8 9
(4)	Other relationships are determined in accordance with subsections (2) and (3).	10 11
(5)	A former guardian stops being a guardian of the adopted child.	12 13
(6)	A former adoption order stops having effect.	14
(7)	Despite subsections (3) to (6), if the final adoption order is for the adopted child's adoption by the spouse of a parent of the adopted child, the relationship between the adopted child and that parent is not affected.	15 16 17 18
(8)	Also despite subsections (3) to (6), for the purpose of a law relating to a sexual offence for which relationships are relevant, a former relationship continues, despite the final adoption order, in addition to other relationships created by the order.	19 20 21 22 23
(9)	This section applies subject to another law that expressly distinguishes between adopted children and other children.	24 25
(10)	In this section— former adoption order means an order for the adoption of the adopted child, made under this Act or another law of Queensland or another jurisdiction, in force immediately before the making of the final adoption order.	26 27 28 29 30

12
13
14

215 Child's name 15

29

(4) The court must consider whether the child is generally known by, or identifies with, any of the child's existing names. 30
31

(5)	The court must not make an order under subsection (1)(b)(iii) unless satisfied it would harm the child’s wellbeing or best interests to keep the existing given name.	1 2 3
(6)	This section does not prevent a change of the child’s name under another law after the final adoption order is made.	4 5
216	Effect of adoption orders in relation to property	6
(1)	Section 214 has effect in relation to—	7
(a)	dispositions of property whether by will or otherwise; and	8 9
(b)	devolutions of property in respect of which a person dies intestate.	10 11
(2)	However, section 214 does not affect the operation of a will or other instrument that distinguishes between adopted children and children other than adopted children.	12 13 14
(3)	This section applies subject to section 346.	15
217	Bequest by will to an unascertained adopted person	16
(1)	This section applies if—	17
(a)	under a will, the testator makes a disposition of property to a person who is described—	18 19
(i)	as being a child of the testator or of another person; and	20 21
(ii)	as having been adopted by another person; and	22
(b)	the personal representative of the testator is unable to find out the name and address of the adopted person.	23 24

- (6) If the chief executive is unable to find out the name, address or date of death, the chief executive must advise the public trustee. 12
13
14
- (7) On receiving information or advice from the chief executive under subsection (5) or (6), the public trustee must give a notice to the personal representative stating— 15
16
17
- (a) whether the name or address has been ascertained; or 18
- (b) if it has been ascertained that the adopted person has died, the date of death. 19 20
- (8) The public trustee is a trustee for the adopted person on the trusts stated in, or arising under, the will. 21
22
- (9) If the personal representative transfers property to the public trustee as trustee for the adopted person, the personal representative is taken to have transferred the property to the adopted person. 23
24
25
26
- (10) Subsections (8) and (9) do not apply if the adopted person died before the testator or, for another reason, is not entitled to an interest under the will. 27
28
29
- (11) If the public trustee gives the personal representative a notice that the adopted person has disclaimed property to which the adopted person was entitled under the will, the notice is, for the purpose of administering the estate, sufficient evidence that the adopted person has disclaimed the property. 30

32
33

(2)	A trustee who transfers or distributes property under subsection (1) is not liable to a person claiming directly or indirectly because of an adoption unless the trustee has notice of the claim before the transfer or distribution.	10 11 12 13
(3)	This section does not affect a person’s right to follow property into the hands of a person, other than a purchaser for value, who has received it.	14 15 16

(1)	A final adoption order may be discharged on any of the following grounds—	22 23
(a)	the order was made or something was done for the purpose of making the order—	24 25
(i)	because of a false or misleading document or representation; or	26 27
(ii)	because a person acted fraudulently or used undue influence on another person; or	28 29

[s 220]

(iii) in another improper way;	1
(b) a consent required for the adoption was not given freely and voluntarily by a person with capacity to give the consent;	2 3 4

(b) caused or threatened to cause injury to the other person; or	11 12

(2) The application must state the ground on which it is made.	25
(3) As soon as practicable after filing the application in the court, the applicant must serve a copy of it on each party to the adoption and, if the applicant is not the chief executive, on the chief executive.	26 27 28 29

(4)	A served copy must state where and when the application is to be heard.	1 2
(5)	A copy served on a person who is a party to the adoption, other than the adopted person, must also state that the application may be heard and decided even though the person does not appear in court.	3 4 5 6
(6)	The court may dispense with the requirement to serve a copy of the application on a person who is a party to the adoption, other than the adopted person, if the court is satisfied the applicant—	7 8 9 10
(a)	can not establish the person’s identity after making all reasonable enquiries; or	11 12
(b)	can not locate the person after making all reasonable enquiries.	13 14
222	Respondent	15

(1)	The court may not hear or decide the application unless the adopted person or a lawyer representing the adopted person appears in the proceeding.	27 28 29

[s 225]

- (2) Otherwise, the court may hear and decide the application in the absence of a person who is a party to the adoption only if—
- (a) the person has been given reasonable notice of the hearing and failed to attend or continue to attend the hearing; or
 - (b) the court dispenses with the requirement to serve a copy of the application on the person under section 221(6).
- (3) Subsections (1) and (2) do not limit the court’s jurisdiction to exclude a person from a proceeding.

225 Court orders

- (1) The court may discharge the final adoption order only if satisfied of a ground mentioned in section 219.
- (2) If the applicant is not the adopted person, the court must not discharge the order if it considers the discharge is likely to be contrary to the adopted person’s wellbeing and best interests.
- (3) The order may be discharged even if the adopted person is an adult.
- (4) If the adopted person is a child and has any views about the proposed discharge and is able to express the views, having regard to the child’s age or ability to understand, the court must consider the views.

(a)	anything lawfully done, or the consequences of anything lawfully done, while the final adoption order was in force; or	7 8 9
(b)	a right, privilege or liability acquired, accrued or incurred while the final adoption order was in force.	10 11
(3)	The discharge order does not affect a consent given to the child’s adoption unless the court decides otherwise.	12 13
(4)	For the purpose of a law relating to a sexual offence for which relationships are relevant, a relationship between a child and another person that existed immediately before the making of the discharge order continues, despite the discharge order, in addition to other relationships that exist because of the discharge order.	14 15 16 17 18 19
