Reprints Act 1992

An Act relating to reprints of legislation and for other purposes related to legislation

Part 1 Preliminary

1 Short title

This Act may be cited as the Reprints Act 1992.

2 Object of Act

- (1) The object of this Act is to facilitate the updating and ready availability of Queensland legislation.
- (2) The object is to be achieved by modernising the law relating to reprints of Queensland legislation.

3 Definitions

The dictionary in schedule 1 defines particular words used in this Act.

Part 2 Preparation of reprints

4 Parliamentary counsel may prepare reprints

The parliamentary counsel may prepare a reprint of a law under this Act, including a law that has not been amended and a reprint in electronic form.

Part 3 Amendments must be included in reprints

5 Amendments

If a law has been amended by—

- (a) the omission of provisions; or
- (b) the insertion of provisions (whether or not in substitution for omitted provisions);

a reprint of the law must—

- (c) show the law as amended by all amendments that commenced on or before the reprint date; and
- (d) incorporate all necessary consequential amendments, whether of punctuation, numbering or another kind.

Example 1—

If the following provision were to be amended by the omission of paragraph (c), the bracketed punctuation mark would replace the bolded punctuation mark and the word ‘and’ at the end of paragraph (b) would be omitted—

- ‘5. A notice is to—
 - (a) be signed by the chairperson; and
 - (b) specify the time within which it is to be complied with; (.) and
 - (c) specify the place at which it is to be complied with.’.

Example 2—

If a section that is not divided into subsections is amended by the insertion of a subsection at the end, the existing provision is numbered as subsection (1).

Example 3—

If a section that is divided into subsections is amended by the insertion of another subsection that is given a new number (for example, a subsection (1A) to be inserted after subsection (1)), section 5(d) does not require the renumbering of subsections after the inserted subsection.

Example 4—

If a definition is added to a section consisting of 1 definition, the existing section heading ‘Definition’ would become ‘Definitions’.

Example 5—

If a provision heading is amended, a reference to the provision mentioning the provision heading may be amended to mention the amended provision heading.

6 Reference to amending law

A reprint of a law that shows the law as amended by amendments must include, in a suitable place, a reference to the law by which each amendment was made.

Part 4 Editorial changes may be included in reprints

Division 1 General

7 Editorial changes

- (1) In a reprint of a law, the text of the law may be given—
 - (a) using citations and references permitted by Division 2; and
 - (b) using references permitted by Division 3; and
 - (c) using words and references, and otherwise expressed as, permitted by Division 4; and
 - (d) making the omissions and insertions permitted by sections 31, 33 and 33B; and
 - (e) using the names permitted by sections 32 and 33A; and
 - (f) using headings, format and printing style permitted by sections 34 and 35; and

- (g) omitting provisions as permitted by sections 36 to 42B; and
 - (h) using the numbering and renumbering of provisions and the references permitted by section 43; and
 - (i) correcting minor errors as permitted by section 44; and
 - (j) doing anything else permitted to be done by this Act or a regulation; and
 - (k) making all necessary consequential amendments.
- (2) If the text of a law is given as permitted by subsection (1), the reprint—
- (a) must indicate that fact in a suitable place; and
 - (b) must outline in general terms, and in a suitable place, the way in which the permission was used.

8 Editorial changes not to change effect

Section 7 does not permit changes to the text of a provision of a law that would change the effect of the provision.

9 Effect of editorial changes

If, in a reprint authorised by the parliamentary counsel under the Legislative Standards Act 1992, section 10A, the text of a law is given as permitted by section 7, the law has effect as if the changes made under that section had been made expressly by another law that amended the law immediately before the reprint date.

Division 2 Updated citations and references to law

10 Omission of comma

If a law or group of laws has a citation that includes a comma before or after a year in the citation, the citation or a reference to the law or laws may be given omitting the comma.

11 Omission of inverted commas

If a law or group of laws has a citation that begins and ends with inverted commas, the citation or a reference to the law or laws may be given omitting the inverted commas.

12 Omission of ‘of’

If a law or group of laws has a citation that includes the word ‘of’ before the first year in the citation, the citation or a reference to the law or laws may be given omitting the word.

13 Omission of ‘to’

If a law or group of laws has a citation that includes the word ‘to’ between the 2 years in the citation, the citation or a reference to the law or laws may be given omitting the word and substituting a hyphen.

14 Omission of ‘The’—general

If a law or group of laws has a citation that begins with the word ‘The’—

- (a) the citation or a reference to the law or laws may be given omitting the word; and
- (b) if the context requires—the word ‘The’ or ‘the’, as appropriate, may be inserted immediately before the citation or reference.

The citation of, and a reference to, The Criminal Code may be given omitting the word ‘The’ and inserting, if the context requires, the word ‘The’ or ‘the’, as appropriate, immediately before the citation or reference.

16 Year law made not included in citation

If a law has a citation that does not include a year, the citation or a reference to the law may be given including the year the law was made.

Example—

‘The Judicature Act’ may be cited as the ‘Judicature Act 1876’.

17 Word ‘Act’ not included in citation etc.

- (1) If an Act has a citation that does not include the word ‘Act’, the citation or a reference to the Act may be given including the word ‘Act’, and any necessary consequential amendments made to the citation or reference.
- (2) If subordinate legislation has a citation that does not indicate the type of instrument, the citation or a reference to the legislation may be given including the type of instrument, and any necessary consequential amendments made to the citation or reference.

18 Substitution of single-year citation for double-year citation

- (1) The citation of a law that has been amended, or a group of laws, may be given by omitting from the citation any words after the first year in the citation.
- (2) In a provision of a law, a reference to another law or a group of laws may be given by omitting from the reference any words after the first year.

19 Substitution of singular form for plural form of citation for amended laws etc.

- (1) The citation of a law that has been amended, or a group of laws, that is in the plural form may be given by changing the citation to the singular form.
- (2) In a provision of a law, a reference in the plural form to a law as amended may be given by changing the reference to the singular form.

Example—

‘Land Act 1910’ may replace ‘Land Acts 1910–1958’.

Note, however, that section 18 has also been applied to this example.

20 Citation indicating type of statutory instrument in plural

If a statutory instrument has a citation or is otherwise called by a name indicating the type of instrument in the plural, the instrument may be given a citation, or referred to by a name, indicating the type of instrument in the singular.

Example—

A statutory instrument that is called by a name in column 1 of the table may be called by the corresponding name in column 2

Table
Column 1	Column 2
Regulations	Regulation
By-laws	By-law
Rules	Rule

Thus, the Traffic Regulations 1962 may now be called the Traffic Regulation 1962.

If—

- (a) a statutory instrument is made in a particular year (the year of making); and

 - (a) in the body of a law there is a reference to a provision of a numbered schedule or appendix; and
 - (b) words indicating the schedule or appendix by number do not appear at the end of the reference; words indicating the schedule or appendix by number, or words of similar effect, may be inserted at the end of the reference.

- (3) If—
- (a) in a schedule or appendix to a law there is a reference to a provision of the body of the law; and
 - (b) words indicating that the reference is to the body of the law do not appear at the end of the reference; words indicating that the reference is to the body of the law may be inserted at the end of the reference.

- (4) In this section—

body of a law means the law other than a schedule or appendix to the law.

Example of subsection (3)—

In an Act, ‘of this Act’ and, in a regulation, ‘of this regulation’ could be inserted at the end of a reference in Schedule 1 to ‘section 14’ of the body of the law.

Division 6 Updated form of law

34 Relocation of marginal or cite notes

A marginal note to a provision of a law, or a note to a provision of a law appearing in and at the beginning of the provision, may be treated as the heading to the provision.

35 Format and printing style

The format and printing style of a law (including, for example, the setting out of the provisions, the placement of conjunctives and disjunctives and the use of capital letters, punctuation, hyphens, italics, bolding and quotation marks) may be brought into line with current legislative drafting practice.

Example 1—

‘(2) In this section—

person includes an unincorporated body.’

may replace

‘(2) In this section, the term person includes an unincorporated body.’.

Example 2—

may replace

‘variation in relation to a permit includes a variation of conditions of the permit;’.

Example 3—

may replace

‘Petroleum (Submerged Lands) Act 1967’.

Example 4—

In the following provision heading, the bracketed words may be omitted—

‘(SECTION 2.2 INDUSTRIAL MATTER)

2.2 Industrial matter’.

Note also that section 34 could also be applied to this example.

36 Omission of arrangement provisions

A provision of a law setting out the arrangement of the law, or provisions of the law, may be omitted.

37 Omission of expired provisions etc.

A provision of a law that is spent, has expired, or otherwise ceased to have effect, may be omitted.

38 Omission of old saving, transitional and validation provisions

A saving, transitional or validation provision of a law may be omitted if the provision applies only to a time or event that has passed.

39 Omission of obsolete and redundant provisions

If a provision of a law is obsolete or redundant because of the making of any law, the provision may be omitted.

Example 1—

In the following provisions, the bolded words may be omitted—

- 1 ‘In this Act, unless the context otherwise indicates, the following terms have the meanings respectively assigned to them, that is to say,—’.
- 2 ‘In this Act, unless the contrary intention appears—’.

Example 2—

Because of the Acts Interpretation Act 1954, particularly section 24B(8)(b) (which says that laws apply to an acting appointee as if the appointee were the holder of the office), section 33 (References to Ministers, departments and chief executives) and section 36 (Meaning of commonly used words and expressions), many statutory definitions are redundant.

Accordingly, common definitions such as the following can be omitted as redundant—

- 1 area, in relation to a local authority, has the meaning it has under the Local Government Act 1936;
 - 2 Department means the department of government of Queensland within which this Act is administered;

- 5 Minister means the Minister of the Crown for the time being charged with the administration of this Act and includes any other Minister of the Crown for the time being performing the duties of the Minister.

42A Omission of words of enactment or notification

Words of enactment or notification of a law may be omitted.

Example of enacting words—

The Parliament of Queensland enacts—

Example of words of notification—

His Excellency the Administrator of the Government, acting by and with the advice of the Executive Council and under section XYZ of the Example Act 19XY, makes the following order in council—

[order]

And the Honourable the Minister is to give the necessary directions herein accordingly.

XYZ, Clerk of the Council.

42B Omission of provision heading with reference

Words associated with a reference to a provision of a law indicating the provision heading of, or associated with, the provision referred to may be omitted.

Example—

If a provision states that—

‘An officer may make a disclosure under section 28(2)(a) (Public officer may disclose official misconduct)’ and the words in brackets are the section heading for section 28, the provision may be reprinted as—

‘An officer may make a disclosure under section 28(2)(a)’.

43 Numbering and renumbering of provisions

- (1) An unnumbered provision of a law may be numbered in a way that is consistent with current legislative drafting practice, and all necessary consequential numbering amendments made.

Example—

In the following provision, the sentences may be numbered (1), (2), (3) and (4) respectively—

‘5. A tenant is not to be entitled to compensation, unless 2 months at least before the determination of the tenancy the tenant gives the landlord written notice claiming compensation.

If a tenant gives such a notice, the landlord may, within 1 month, give the tenant written notice claiming any set-off.

Every notice under this section must state the particulars and amount of the intended claim.

Provided that noncompliance by either party with any of the provisions of this section does not deprive such party of any rights under this Division if the arbitrator is of opinion that there was reasonable excuse for the noncompliance.’

- (2) If a provision of a law is numbered in a way that is inconsistent with current legislative drafting practice—
 - (a) the provision may be renumbered in a way that is consistent with current legislative drafting practice; and

- (b) all necessary consequential numbering amendments may be made.

Example 1—

- ‘(3) A notice to terminate is sufficiently given if—
- (a) it is delivered to a person apparently over 18 who apparently resides on the premises; or
 - (b) it is advertised in a daily newspaper circulating in the district in which the premises are situated.
- (3A) Where a proceeding for the recovery of the possession of land or premises is taken in reliance on a notice to terminate given in a manner provided in subsection (3)(a), any occupier of the land or other person claiming an interest in the land or premises shall be entitled to be heard in the proceeding.

Editor’s note—

Section 43(4) has also been applied to this example.

- (4) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of a landlord to give notice to terminate otherwise than as provided in this section.’

may replace

- ‘(3) —
- (a) A notice to terminate is sufficiently given if—

- (4) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of a landlord to give notice to terminate otherwise than as provided in this section.’

Example 2—

- ‘10.(1) The office of councillor shall be vacated if the councillor—
- (a) is ousted from office by the Supreme Court; or
 - (b) is or has become disqualified under this Act.’

may replace

- ‘10(1) The office of councillor shall be vacated if the councillor—
- (i) is ousted from office by the Supreme Court; or
 - (ii) is or has become disqualified under this Act.’.
- (3) If a law has been amended so that the numbering of provisions of the law is significantly different to the way in which the provisions would have been numbered if the law were to be remade—
- (a) the law may be renumbered in a way that is consistent with current legislative drafting practice; and
 - (b) all necessary consequential numbering amendments may be made.
- (4) If a provision of a law is numbered or renumbered under this section—
- (a) a reference in any instrument to the provision is a reference to the provision as numbered or renumbered; and
 - (b) a reference in the law or another law to the provision may be changed to a reference to the provision as numbered or renumbered.

Division 7 Correction of minor errors

44 Correction of minor errors

If a provision of a law contains a minor error, the provision may be expressed in a different way so as to correct the error.

Example 1—

‘licence’ may replace ‘license’ if used as a noun.

Example 2—

In the following provision, the bolded word may be omitted—

‘The chairperson is to be the executive officer of the the Board.’.

Example 3—

- (1) Nothing in this Act requires each provision of a law to be shown in the location within the law in which the provision was located when the provision was made.

Example—

A table or diagram originally located within the body of a law may be relocated to the end of the law.

- (2) If a provision of a law is not shown in the location within the law in which the provision would otherwise be located, the reprint is to indicate that fact in a suitable place.
