General Outline

Short title

Statutory Instruments Amendment Regulation (No. 2) 2013

Authorising law

Section 59 of the Statutory Instruments Act 1992

Policy objectives and the reasons for them

Part 7 of the Statutory Instruments Act 1992 is designed to require regular review of Queensland's subordinate legislation by causing most subordinate legislation to automatically expire on the 1 September after the tenth anniversary of the day of its making.

Section 56A(1) of the Act allows a regulation to be made to exempt subordinate legislation from expiry for one year on the following grounds:

- replacement subordinate legislation is being drafted and is proposed to be made before the stated period ends;
- the subordinate legislation is not proposed to be replaced or preserved when it expires at the end of the stated period; or
- the Act or provision under which or in relation to which the subordinate legislation or part of the subordinate legislation is made or preserved is subject to review.

Subordinate legislation may also be further extended for a period of not more than one year under section 56A(2) if the Act or provision under which or in relation to which the subordinate legislation or part of the subordinate legislation is made or preserved is subject to review.

The Statutory Instruments Amendment Regulation (No. 2) 2013 ensures that subordinate legislation may be exempted from expiry or further exempted from expiry where appropriate grounds exist under section 56A of the Statutory Instruments Act 1992.
